PROJECTS

Binary Translator ⬈ | Technology Used: React JS

- I developed a React application focused on binary operations and conversions. The application serves as a versatile binary calculator, enabling users to perform various conversions seamlessly. It includes functionalities such as converting decimal numbers to binary and hexadecimal, converting binary to text, hexadecimal, and decimal, as well as converting text to binary and ASCII. This project demonstrates my proficiency in React development and my ability to create practical tools for specific tasks.

X-Cart ⬈ | Technology Stack Used: MERN Stack

- I spearheaded the development of a dynamic MERN (MongoDB, Express.js, React.js, Node.js) e-commerce web application, enabling users to seamlessly search, filter, and add products to their cart. Leveraging Redux Toolkit for efficient state management, I ensured a smooth user experience, particularly for logged-in users who could securely add items to their cart. The project involved implementing multiple APIs for CRUD operations, ensuring robust functionality and data management. This hands-on experience equipped me with comprehensive skills in full-stack development, frontend design, backend integration, and state management, enhancing my proficiency in modern web development technologies.
